Byron Business Solutions Environmental Policy

As a training business, Byron does not get involved with polluting processes so has a limited ability to reduce environmental impact.

Byron uses as little printing and paper as possible and often supplies materials and handouts in digital form. Materials can then be accessed later on screen by delegates using smart phones, tablets, laptops etc.

Byron encourages the safe use of public transport wherever possible. Trains are always preferred to car journeys if possible. Air travel is rare and only used when absolutely necessary.

Choice of vehicle is left to the trainers (who are self-employed) but we do not pay higher expenses for larger vehicles so there is an incentive to use more efficient ICE vehicles or to switch to electric cars.

Webinars and training using screen sharing software is becoming increasingly popular and this has environmental as well as cost benefits.
